Ramadan begins

THE Ministry of Justice announced last night that the Holy Month of Ramadan will begin in Kuwait today. The ministry said it based its decision on the sighting of the new moon in Saudi Arabia.

Bahrain, Qatar and the UAE also announced that Thursday will be the first day of Ramadan.

All citizens and residents are urged to respect sanctity and obey the stipulations which prohibit daytime smoking, eating or drinking during the Holy Month of Ramadan, according to a senior police official.

Col Ahmed Abdul Aziz Al Qattami, assistant director-general for police communications and patrols, said that special police patrols and personnel will be deployed to operate a twoshift system to apprehend any violators of the law. Violators are liable to one-month imprisonment if convicted by the court.

Saudi Arabia yesterday warned foreigners they could be deported if they smoke, eat or drink in public during Ramadan. The warning from the Interior Ministry was carried by the official Saudi Press Agency.

BEIRUT, April 5, (Agencies): A merciless artillery barrage killed at least 26 people in Beirut today as Arab League and French envoys sought an end to the slaughter. Babies and children screamed and wept as terrified civilians crouched in shelters while gunfire engulfed the city for the 23rd day.

In Damascus. Kuwait's Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmed, who heads an Arab League mediation team, made a new call for a ceasefire to start at Wednesday midnight. After a six-hour talk with Syrian President Hafez Assad, Sheikh Sabah said: "We appeal to all the warring parties to observe a ceasefire as of midnight." He did not say whether Assad had agreed to the truce. Sheikh Sabah also called for attacks on ports and airports to end and crossing points opened between case, according to PTI. United News of India, another news agency, quoting unidentified sources, said charges will be filed against five people on The government earlier said the police team had "unravelled a larger conspiracy to destabilise the country.

Indira was killed by two Sikh bodyguards on Oct 31, 1984 as she walked to a television interview on the lawns of her New Delhi residence.

One of the assassins, Beant Singh, was shot and killed by other bodyguards and the other, Satwant Singh, was hanged. Two other Sikhs, Balbir Singh and Kehar Singh, were charged with Balbir was acquitted and Kehar was executed with Satwant.

The investigations by the special investigation team ran parallel to an inquiry by Supreme Court Justice M.P. Thakkar whose report was made public on March 27. The report was kept a secret for nearly three years on Thakkar's recommendation. He said making it public might jeopardise other investigations.

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi released part of the report after an Indian newspaper published parts of it linking Indira's personal secretary. Rajendra Kumar Dhawan, to the murder.

Indian opposition politicians walked out of Parliament again today in a continuing battle with Rajiv over the judicial report.

This time the walk-out was in protest against Rajiv's allegation that the furore over the report showed the opposition supported the Sikh bodyguards who gunned down Indira.

The opposition decided yesterday to stage walk-outs whenever the report was mentioned in Parliament in protest against Rajiv's refusal to publish 12,000 pages of documents collected by the judical enquiry.

The fighting escalated today, with the hardline Christian Lebanese Forces militia and Iranian-backed Hezbollah militiamen joining the battle. Syrian gunners, who have been fighting beside their Muslim allies, fired from positions north of the capital for the first time.

Salvoes of rockets smashed into the previously-untouched Byblos resort area some 30 km (20 miles) north of Beirut.

As fighting rocked the capital, Israeli jets flew reconnaissance flights over the city, breaking the sound barrier and adding to the terror felt by civilians crammed into shelters and cellars.

Security sources said more than 5,000 heavy shells slammed into East Beirut and the Christian heartland north of the city. The sources estimated 2,000 shells hit West Beirut and the Druze mountains to the south-

WASHINGTON, April 5, (Agencies): Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir presented Secretary of State James Baker with proposals to solve problems in the Middle East today, and Baker said he was encouraged.

visit to Cuba

Friendship treaty signed

HAVANA, April 5, (AP): Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev ended his 63-hour visit to Cuba today after promising the Kremlin would refrain from putting military bases or nuclear weapons in Latin America. Cubans lined Havana's streets this morning to bid farewell to Gorbachev and his wife Raisa, as they headed to the airport for a trip to London. Prensa Latina, the official Cuban news agency, estimated the crowd's size at 500,000.

About 700 buses were mobilised for the Gorbachev motorcade, banners were draped along the 18.6-mile (30-kilometre) route from downtown Havana to Jose Marti airport, and many people waited more than three hours for a final glimpse of the Soviet leader. Many workers were given time off to join in the departure Prensa Latina said Gorbachev's visit "was an expression of the new breezes of renovation that are blowing through the relations between the socialist countries, characterised by the strictest respect of each for nonintervention in internal affairs and the right of each country to apply the formulas most appropriate to their own individual conditions and their own experiences.

Gorbachev ended his first diplomatic trip to Latin America at mid-morning following a hectic day yesterday highlighted by his late afternoon speech to the National Assembly.
With President Fidel Castro

sitting nearby, Gorbachev told the assembly that Moscow supported the creation of a "zone of peace" in Latin America and an end to all outside military aid to the region.

Soviets flayed

LONDON, April 5, (Agencies): With Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev due to arrive in Britain tonight, nearly a third of the 650 House of Commons legislators have signed an advert-isement in the Times of London accusing the Soviets of continuing human rights abuses.

The 212 legislators said in the full-page advertisement placed by the all-party parliamentary committee for the release of Soviet Jewry and published this

"We welcome President Gorin Britain. We bachev's arrival in Britain. We also welcome the concluding statement of the Vienna conference and the Soviet government's renewed commitments to improving human rights conditions in the Soviet Union which are contained in it.

these basic human rights. "These basic human rights, guaranteed by international law, continue to be abused in the Soviet Union. We look forward to the Soviet Union fulfilling its undertakings. At that time we would feel able to give our warm support to the British government's attendance at the Moscow human rights conference."

No ministers in Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's Conservative government were among the signatories.

The number of Britons who fear a military threat from the Soviet Union has fallen sharply under the leadership of Gorbachev, an opinion poll said today.

The findings of the poll, con-ducted by Mori for the London Times, indicated that Soviet disarmament initiatives since Gorbachev came to power in 1985 have made a significant impact in Britain despite the scepticism voiced by Thatcher and Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe.

He called for "stricter accountability and more discipline to ensure timely and proper com-pliance with obligations mutually assumned. The mutually assumned." The remarks were interpreted as Soviet displeasure over protracted delays in development projects to which Moscow has contributed.

On hemispheric issues, Gorba-chev insisted that his country-had limited ambitions. The Soviet Union, he said, "does not seek for itself political, strategic or military advantage in the Western hemisphere.

Swede to be charged with Palme murder

STOCK HOLM, April 5. (Reuter): A 42-yearold man with a long history of violent crime will be charged with the 1986 murder of Prime Minister Ölof Palme, a Swedish state prosecutor said today.

Evidence against the suspect has... become sufficiently strong that the intention on the prosecutor's part is that a charge should be laid and the matter decided in court," said prosecutor Axel Morath.

The suspect, who under Swedish law cannot be named, has consistently denied the charge, telling police interrogators he spent the night of Palme's murder in a nightclub close to the spot where the prime minister was

Palme was murdered on the evening of February 28, 1986 as he walked home unguarded from a cinema with his wife.

The suspect was arrested last December 14 and prosecutors immediately told the media they were sure he was the man who had shot But ballistics tests on two firearms found in his possession failed to match the murder weapon, making it uncertain the prosecution case will be strong enough to succeed.

The case has been long and difficult and authorities hesitated for weeks before finally deciding to test their evidence in court.

Police sources said although the man's alibi did not hold up and five people including Palme's widow Lisbet saw him outside the cinema or near the scene of the crime, nobody could testify he was the killer.

sign pact WARSAW, April 5, (Reuter): The Polish government and opposition signed agreements today on unprecedented reforms that will end the Communist Party's monopoly of power. The signing took place at the final session of marathon government-opposition talks that brought agreement on legalising the banned Solidarity Union and injecting an element of democracy into the nation's political institutions.

"We are entering a new stage on the road to democracy but we still have a long way to go," Solidarity leader Lech Walesa said as he entered the meeting in an 18th century Warsaw Palace. The reforms are designed to pull Poland out of economic and political crisis. They will give the opposition a role in Parliament. Many opposition members were imprisoned under martial law which General Wojciech Jaruzelski imposed in 1981 to suppress Solidarity is expected to obtain legal registration later this month for the first time since 1981 and many of its leaders are likely to enter Parliament in June under an electoral pact with the government.

The union's leadership overcame last-minute hesitation and signed the package despite failing to win an all-party agreement on wage indexation to compensate for soaring inflation.
The official OPZZ unions pulled out of the agreement earlier and Solidarity accused them of acting for Communist Party hardliners in a bid to torpedo the reforms.

A package of reform laws embodying agreements at the talks is already before Parliament and due to be passed

Malaysian palm oil controversy simmers

KUALA LUMPUR, April 5, (KUNA): The Malaysian government has denied reports from Oman that hard stearin palm oil with melting point above 50 degrees Celcius found in Gulf states markets as food or ghee products are imported from Malaysia.

Primary Industries Minister Dr Lim Keng Yaik said today he had no reason to believe that Malaysians were doing this adding: "Hard stearin palm oil is usually used in making soap." The minister was commenting on reports from Oman that Malaysians exported hard stearin palm oil for use as food or ghee products.

He said Oman's 1985 standard for vegetable ghee enforced by its government in 1987 was so restrictive that it excluded good quality ghee made from palm oil.

He pointed out the Federal Land Development Authority (FELDA) used to export palmbased ghee to Oman but found its exports blocked due to this standard which specified iodine value of minimum 70. This precluded 100 per cent palm-based vegetable ghee or high incorporation of palm products.

Dr Lim said the Palm Oil Research Institute of Malaysia (PORIM) has also made representations to the Omani directorate-general on the matter.

He said some palm-based products exported to the Gulf states did not conform to local standards and were referred to the local municipal authorities and stopped.

The minister said the complaint in Oman could have been with reference to the period before the vegetable ghee standard was inforced. He said other countries had demand for ghee in Oman and exported low quality products. I am sure none of the hard stearin palm oil exported as food or ghee products comes from Malaysia based on reports from our task officers in the area who are continuously monitoring our

Drink more water in Ramadan: doctor

By Fathima Ahmed

Arab Times staff A LEADING nephrologist has warned of the dangers of drinking too little water, and has urged Muslims to drink at least two litres of water between dusk and dawn during the month of

The warning came in light of a recently concluded two-year survey done at Mubarak Al Kabir Hospital, which shows a 50 per cent jump in kidney failure during summer months, April to September.

Dr K.V. Johnny, who heads the department of nephrology at the hospital, said there is a "higher risk" of forming kidney stones during Ramadan, when water intake is reduced due to long hours of fasting.

A majority of people, he said, tend to eat large quantities of protein-rich foods at night. upsetting the metabolism, and neglect consumption of fluids. The dietary habits of a Muslim change during Ramadan, when he eats after sunset and before sunrise. "As a result, he doesn't drink water during the day, but he works, perhaps in the sun, and sweats, causing dehydration," Dr Johnny explained.

Because we eat protein-rich food, salt intake rises but output (excretionary function) decreases, causing a higher formation of uric acid resulting in "renal colic," he said. This may start the process of salt crystallisation, leading to the formation of a kidney stone at a later stage," he said. To avoid such an eventuality, he advised Muslims to drink plenty of water eat a balanced, fatless diet and avoid sudden bursts of exercise.

Another risk is urinary infection, especially among females, due to the formation of bacteria, he said. Dehydration also results, he added

He strongly advised people with a kidney problem "not to deprive themselves of water. They must drink as much water as possible.

He said that during the sum-mer, 1.3 per 1,000 patients are admitted for renal treatment and 35 for acute kidney failure at the Mubarak Al Kabir Hospital

He also cautioned people against excessive exercise during the summer, which may result in kidney problems. "People who are not accustomed to exercising often take up swimming or jogging too abruptly, causing mus-cular strain which can affect the kidneys. Kidney disease is a major health problem in Kuwait with a high incidence of 100 patients per million people. In the West, the ratio is 60-80 patients per million population. Recently, the Health Ministry advised patients on dialysis treatment to seek kidney donors for transplants. Dr Johnny claims the decision was made because of a shortage of dialysis beds. There are 250 patients on dialysis, of whom 60 per cent could have transplant operations.

He dispelled a common misconception that the life expectancy of a person on dialysis is under one year. He said; "There is only a five per cent chance of is only a five per cent chance of someone succumbing to disease; 95 per cent of dialysis patients survive longer than one year."

Alcohol, drugs serious hazard

Defence personnel affected

By Lima Al Khalafawi

Arab Times staff DURING the second day of the ongoing seminar on drugs, the adverse effects on personnel of the Ministry of Defence were indicated. Though it is difficult to give exact statistics of the number of defence personnel addicted to drugs, indications confirm that drugs followed by alcohol constitute a serious hazard to defence personnel.

Speaking at the seminar, Dr Osama Bouri of the Ministry of Defence said that Kuwait's affluent society and state support make it psychologically hard on conscripts to accept rigid disci-pline. This psychological pres-sure is mistakenly thought by some to be eased by taking drugs and alcohol.

There is an imminent need for comprehensive and extensive cooperation between all sections of the government. Bouri said. He added that while he acknowledged that this problem has not reached alarming proportions in Kuwait as compared to other parts of the world, "prevention is better than cure".

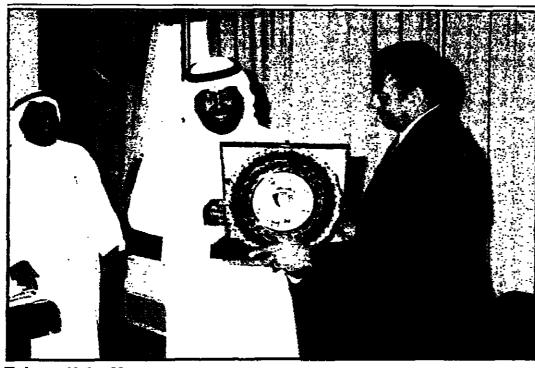

Also speaking at the seminar,

Abdul Rahman Faris of the General Customs Authority said that it is very difficult to evaluate the size of the drug problem in Kuwait due to the involvement of different bodies in combatting this menace. Faris called for reviewing penalties for smugglers and advocated the death penalty for organised smugglers and those with past convictions for smuggling.

The official called for the formation of a higher individual authority with a special budget run by highly qualified experts to solve this problem.

Upgrading manpower

KUWAIT'S development strategy programme has adopted the slogan "Upgrading of the Kuwaiti Human Being", according to Minister of Higher Education Dr Ali Al Shamlan. In his opening speech at the administrative seminar, entitled, "The Kuwaiti Experiment", the minister said that the strategy was based on develop-ing the capabilities of Kuwaitis and enhancing their contributions in different productive sectors.

Shamlan said that the administrative process constituted the first issue in the government's programmes issued by HH the Crown Prince and Premier at the beginning of 1988, and which were reiterated by witnessed by the country by the 1990's.

Shamlan stressed the importance of synchronising the educational process with training, and said that without this combination the future of social and economic development will not be realised.

Speaking on the achievements of Kuwait University and the applied institutes, the minister said that about 25,245 had graduated from the university 19,290 from the institutes of the Public Authority for Applied Education and Training. Shamlan said that the integration of government and private efforts will constitute a basic introduction towards realising national objectives. The two-day seminar which ended yesterday, was designed to debate the experiments of a number of government institutions, including Kuwait Invest-ment Authority, the Public Institution for Social Security, Kuwait National Petroleum Company (KNPC) and Kuwait Airways (KAC), in addition to the experiment of the Ministry of Finance.

Also speaking at the seminar, Dr Ali Mohammed Al Baddah confirmed that the achievement of administrative development requires the concentrated co-operation of all concerned authorities.

Police round up Turkish activists, find arms

ANKARA, April 5, (Agencies): Turkish police detained 26 lest-wing activists in the past month and seized weapons, ammuni-tion and explosives, security officials said.

Istanbul police reported hold-ing 14. Ankara police chief Mehmet Agar told reporters that his men had picked up 12.

Three guns, 140 rounds of ammunition, explosives, banned t's lestwing literature and police uniforms were found in searches of the homes of the Ankara detainees, Agar said.

A security source said those held in Ankara were members of the Dev-Soi (revolutionary left) which claimed responsibility for bombing the Istanbul offices of three leading companies on Sunday. The affiliation of the Istanbul group was not given.

The Ankara group were held responsible for bombing the Metal Employers Union office in January and a branch of the ruling Motherland Party in October 1988.

The culprits of all acts of political violence in Ankara, since the beginning of last year, are now known to us, "Agar said.

In a separate development, Turkish police arrested two US women in Istanbul as they tried to protest against a film festival screening of "The Last Tempta-tion of Christ," US and Turkish officials said today.

· A US consular official said police had not given full details about the names or charges against the two women but their release was expected shortly.

About 200 Muslim demonstrators marched in protest against the first screening of the film earlier yesterday, manhandling one policeman. No arrests

Iran withdrew its entry from the festival in protest at the sreening of the film, saying it insulted Christ who is recognised as a prophet by Muslims.

The demonstration was the latest in a series of Islamic fundamentalist protests in Turkish cities in recent weeks that have fuelled a growing crisis between Iran and Turkey, which has been a secular republic since 1923.

Turkey recalled its ambassador to Iran on Monday, saying Tehran had interfered in its internal affairs over a ban on Muslim headscarves in universities. Iran said it would also recall its envoy from Ankara.

US places restrictions

LONDON, April 5, (KUNA): The US has sharply restricted access of Israeli scientists to its nuclear weapons laboratories. according to a report here today.

The move made earlier this year was prompted by the discovery that Israelis had been given access to classified information on nuclear explosions. said the Independent newspaper. Israeli scientists wanting to visit the Los Alamos and Livermore laboratories were now subjected to the same security checks as those imposed on Third World and communist countries, added the daily.

It quoted a "source familiar with the new rules" as saying that in effect, Israel has been lumped together with India and Pakistan as being on the nuclear danger list."

However, it was not clear how previous visits under the old lax egulations might have aided the Israeli nuclear programme.

OPEC opts for stability

A new facade

By Nicholas Moore

LONDON, (Reuter): A new kind of OPEC is struggling to emerge from the wreckage of the old organisation that once appeared to hold the Chastened by a glut, the Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries presents a pragmatic and businesslike face.

And its Secretary-General, Subroto of Indonesia, insists now that the goal is not to ratchet prices up but "the restoration of a stable oil Like the miniskirt, stronger oil prices seem back in fashion. Prices are up nearly 50 per cent this year around $20 a barrel for West Texas Intermediate, the US benchmark crude.

Market experts attribute the recovery to new OPEC curbs on excess supply — a rare show of discipline by the 13-nation group — together with firm petrol demand and incidents like the US tanker spillage which cut the flow of Alaskan oil.

But OPEC shows no sign yet of turning more aggressive. Such influential Gulf Arab nations as Saudi Arabia and Kuwait fear a replay of what happened after the 1973 and 1979 oil "shocks", when $40 oil created a glut by stampeding the West into energy conservation, alternative fuels and the development of oil basins which were outside

As a result of those developments, OPEC now pumps less than 20 million barrels daily of oil, down a third since its heyday in the 1970s. In its effort to get back in the drivers' seat, Subroto said in a keynote speech recently, OPEC now hopes to hold prices around a target of $18 for a year or so while its market share revives to perhaps 23 million

But the organisation, for all its fearsome reputation, has tried to take that road before — only to find that some members broke ranks and drove prices up when the market was tight or undercut one another when it softened.

Its media megastar, the then Saudi Oil Minister Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, led the most ambitious bid for a stable world energy market under OPEC hegemony. A Yamani committee in 1980 came up with the idea of indexing modest, quarterly oil price rises to West's inflation, rate of economic expansion and the value of the dollar.

Called in OPEC folklore "the three-ringed circus," a remarkable meeting was held of its oil, finance and foreign ministries at Vienna's Hofburg Palace to endorse the plan.

Realism

It ended in disarray. Libya, favouring a higher base price, accused Yamani of "dictatorship." And even as the talks proceeded, founder members Iraq and Iran went to war.

Nearly a decade later, the glut has forced a new realism on par-ticipants. An Iraq-Iran ceasefire has eased tensions among Middle East members. And the charismatic Yamani has gone.

OPEC insiders say Yamani upset others by using the weight of Saudi oil power to try to coerce them, turning the taps up or down to flood or tighten the market.

But he never quite got his way. He could not stop Iran, Libya and other "hawks" taking prices up to $40. Then, when he flooded the market in 1986 to try to get Britain and other non-OPEC sellers to cut output and give OPEC back its market share, they called his bluff. Prices sank too far even for Saudis.

OPEC had to reintroduce output curbs, becoming once again the residual supplier of oil. And King Fahd later replaced Yamani with Hisham Nazer, a matter-of-fact technocrat who had earlier masterminded Saudi Arabia's five-year plan.

Other personnel changes have also shaped the new OPEC. Its conference chairman since 1968 has been Rilwanu Lukman, the Nigerian oil minister, a courteous consensus-builder in the tradition of his nation's British-schooled civil service. And in 1988 ministers named Indonesia's Subroto as OPEC secretary-general. The aristocratic Subroto won his OPEC spurs as Indonesia's oil minister in the crises of a decade ago when he mediated tirelessly between the "hawks" and Yamani's camp. A recent Vienna meeting demonstrated the new, collegiate approach favoured by Lukman and Subroto. Ministers used the occasion to begin consultations far in advance of the next full conference, on June 5, on the potentially-divisive question of reallocating output quotas. The goal, delegates said, is to try to wrap up a deal before the conference and avoid haggling in front of the media.

"OPEC's maturity as an organisation appears to have risen in leaps and bounds recently," said London brokerage house Henderson Crosthwaite.

"There was a time when any minister would appoint himself spokes man for the group and commit it to changes in strategy that robbed (it) of any real credibility...comments are now short, to the point and

Sheer lies

CAIRO, (KUNA): The Egyptian daily Al Ahram has dismissed as false Israeli renewed and suspicious charges that Iraq, assisted by Saudi Arabia, has been developing nuclear warheads to be used against Israel in a few years.

The semi-official newspaper editorially said the charges targeted two countries which are members of the Arab Co-operation Council, noting that such accusations coincided with President Mubarak's visit

The paper praised the US administration's reaction which dismissed as unfounded Israeli charges that Iraq was developing nuclear war-

Bush breaks with Reagan tradition

By Helen Thomas

WASHINGTON, (UPI): President Bush is breaking with the Reagan administration in substance as

As vice-president, Bush was the obedient servant who went along to get along with President Reagan, apparently whether he agreed or not. It was the role he carved out for himself: never disagree with the President in public. Or in fact, never show your hand at cabinet meetings or other sessions with administration officials.

He prided himself on never revealing his hand except in the privacy of the Oval Office while he was having lunch with Reagan. The advice he gave, he insisted, was a private matter. As a result, to this day no one knows where he stood on key issues.

Bush is now having his moment in the sun and he is beginning to deviate from the Reagan hardline on some of the perennial issues. The perception of him now is a man moving to the middle.

Aides say he has undergone an evolution in his thinking about guns. Once adamant as Reagan against any ban on guns, particularly in the presidential campaign, Bush has put a temporary ban on the import of some semi-automatic weapons. A life member of the National Rifle Association,

Bush cannot make the leap toward opposing Saturday night specials and other deadly weapons. But the pressures of the times are weighing in.

He also broke with Reagan on tuition tax credit.

For eight years, Reagan assured Catholic and conservative supporters that he favoured a tuition tax for parents who send their children to private schools. Bush, responding to a question by a young student during visit to a school in the area, said that the nation could not afford to give a tuition tax

Reagan appeared to be obsessed with deposing the Nicaraguan government. He totally ignored efforts to promote a diplomatic solution to the question of expanding liberties in Nicaragua and appeared certain that enough military pressure exerted by the US-sponsored rebels, known as Contras, would have Managua suing for peace and promising democracy. It didn't happen.

When Reagan left office, there was a stalemate in Nicaragua. The trials stemming from the diversion &: of funds from the Iranian arms sales to the Contra leaders cast a shadow over his White House.

With opposition as strong as ever in Congress, Bush, who had proclaimed himself a supporter of Contra aid, cut a deal with the bipartisan leaders in Congress to continue providing humanitarian aid to the rebels to the tune of $4.5 million a month, but also to begin demobilising the Contras and to try to get them assimilated back into their country.

Bush opted for diplomacy, not that he had much choice, but it did a lot to heal the wounds that resulted from the White House and congressional tug of war over the problem. The President, of course, was nudged by the five Central American nations that moved swiftly before and after Bush's inauguration, taking him by surpr-ise, in announcing a new peace plan that stressed a negotiated settlement and the diplomatic track.

By moving early in his administration, Bush is able to effect changes smoothly. He has kept his credentials by taking a tough stance against abortion and sending the Justice Department before the Supreme Court to argue for an overturning of the Roe vs. Wade case that legalised abortion.

He also is trying to stay on the right side of the conservatives by selecting a hardliner such as Representative Richard Cheney of Wyoming to be

Secretary of Defence.
At the same time, he is cutting $6 billion from the Reagan Pentagon budget.

Palestinians reject polls to choose 'garbage collectors' Shamir gives little hope of ending occupation

By Nicolas B. Tatro

OCCUPIED JERUSALEM, (AP): The peace proposals Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir will submit to US President George Bush focus on elections in the occupied territories to choose Palestinians who would negotiate with Israel on limited self-government.

Many prominent Palestinians wel-come the idea of balloting but argue that free elections cannot be held as long as Israeli troops occupy the West Bank and the Gaza Strip.

In interviews and through his aides. Shamir said he was willing to have Palestinians choose mayors to speak for major population centres or political figures to epresent the whole region. The elected Palestinians would then meet with Israeli negotiators to work out a temporary solution for the one million residents of the West Bank and the 650,000 inhabitants of the Gaza Strip. The most Palestinians could expect from this process would be limited selfrule with Israeli troops still stationed in the occupied lands. But Shamir has said troops could be pulled out of population centres once an autonomy scheme was Under Shamir's proposals, the final status of the West Bank and Gaza Strip would be the subject of further negotiations after autonomy was implemented.

Shamir's advisers also hint he is ready to release some Palestinian prisoners and take other steps to reduce tension. However, they link any change to a truce in the Palestinian uprising — intifada in Arabic — in which 419 Palestinians and 18 Israelis have died since December

The condition is that life in Judea and Samaria (West Bank) must return to normal. The intifada must end," said

Yossi Ahimeir, a Shamir spokesman. The Shamir ideas closely parallel the 1978 US-mediated Camp David accords signed by Egypt and Israel but rejected by the Palestinians and Jordan. The major difference is that Shamir proposes electing negotiators before autonomy is implemented instead of members of an autonomous council after self-government is defined in talks. "I believe that this will be the one big and important contribution that Shamir is bringing to Washington," said an Israeli official who described the proposal as a "major change" in the government's position. Shamir, however, rules out direct or indirect talks with the PLO, which means, elected representatives could not act as intermediaries.

He gives Palestinians little hope of seeing an end to occupation because he has rejected Palestinian demands for statehood and refused to endorse the idea of returning any captured land to Arab sovereignty.

Labour supports returning some of the captured land in exchange for peace

Municipal elections have been held twice in the West Bank since Israel cap-tured the land from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East war. In the last balloting in 1976, voters chose 23 mayors - nearly all of them supporters of the PLO.

Only six remain in office with most of the rest having been deported or deposed by Israel for nationalist activities.

In the Gaza Strip, elections were last held in 1946, under Egyptian rule.
The main flaw in Shamir's plan is that he has been unable to find Palestinians willing to go along with the elections proposal. But some Palestinians have met secretly with the prime minister or openly with military officials to discuss Saeb Erakat, a political science professor at the An Najah University in the West Bank city of Nablus, said that if, as the PLO has proposed, Israeli troops withdraw and turn over the occupied territory to UN peacekeepers, "then we will consider elections."

He said electing city officials would be meaningless if occupation persisted. "Will elected mayors be able to prevent arrests that the deportation of Palestinian leaders, halt the confiscation of land or the closure of schools? We would just wind up electing people who have the authority to collect the garbage," said Erakat.

Benazir acting pragmatically though hamstrung by political deals

By Sheila Tefft

ISLAMABAD: Four months after taking office, Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto still walks a political tightrope.

Pakistan's new leader is cautiously chipping away at the vestiges of the I l-year, iron-fisted rule of late military ruler, President Mohammed Zia-ul-Haq: she has freed political prisoners and the press, and has travelled overseas and promoted closer links with India, the subcontinental rival that has fought Pakistan in three wars.

But many observers say that, as she strives for a delicate balance in Pakistan's uneasy experiment with democracy, Benazir is hamstrung by the political deals she struck to come to power. Among them was a post-election compromise in which Benazir supported the election of President Ghulam Ishaq Khan, who headed the interim regime after Zia's death last August and has the support of the powerful military.

In addition, a well-entrenched bureaucracy and religious conservatism pose stiff challenges to Benazir, the first woman to lead a Muslim nation. The Army has dominated much of the country's 41-year history, including eight years of martial law under Zia. Foreign policy, defence, and the economy are the prerogative of the political establishment, which has close ties to the United States. And Muslim fundamentalists publicly challenge the right of a woman to run the country

"She is hemmed in on all sides," says Ayaz Amir, a political analyst in the capital, Islamabad. "Her government seems to lack direction and an agenda." Still. Western diplomats say, Benazir has acted pragmatically during this transition to democracy, especially given the added problems of rampant gun- and drug-running, ethnic violence, and caring for three million Afghan refugees. Benazir remains the country's most popular politician and, as a native of volatile Sind province, provides a counterpoint to the dominant influences of Punjab. Pakistan's largest and wealthiest province. "Politically, the need of the hour was national reconciliation," Benazir said in a recent radio interview. "The years of military rule have fragmented our country.... But we feel that with the process of democratisation, these wounds will begin to

But this process may take a long while. By shedding her father's left-wing policies, she has antagonized old-line loyalists of her Pakistan People's Party. The mohajirs, immigrants from India who are key Benazir supporters in Sind, are increasingly disgruntled with the power-sharing arrangement there. And, analysts say, Benazir is hampered by inexperienced advisers. Her biggest threat, however, comes from the religious right, which has called for her downfall. Wed in a traditional arranged marriage and now the mother of an infant son, Benazir has taken steps to underscore her Islamic image, observers say. A chiffon scarf always covers her head. She has visited major Islamic shrines in the Middle East. And she has even issued an order to government officials that men should not shake hands with women.

But recently, while Benazir was away in China, a fundamentalist protest against the controversial Salman Rushdie novel, The Satanic Verses, turned violent outside the US Cultural Centre in Islamabad. Five protesters were killed by police.

Benazir has pledged to remove restrictive laws on women which Zia imposed to forge an "Islamic society" and, many observers charge, to keep Benazir out of power. But women activists say dramatic changes are unlikely soon.

"This has exposed her Achilles heel," says Abida Hussain, a prominent member of Parliament. "She will always be vulnerable to attack from the orthodoxy on any religious issue that may come up.

Capitalising on the religious issue are Benazir's political opponents, led by Punjab Chief Minister Nawaz Sharif. A Zia protege, Sharif emerged as leader of the fragmented, right-wing Islamic Democratic Alliance. Benazir's party is the largest in the national parliament, but the alliance controls Punjab, whose natives dominate the military, government, and the economy. Bickering between the two sides threatens to break into the open. Her party is backing a revolt against Sharif by dissidents within the loose-knit alliance. Sharif charges that Benazir is engineering the effort by offering patronage and bribes. So far. the prime minister has managed to remain above the fray.

But some Pakistanis worry that the confrontation could escalate and bring new political turmoil. Backed by volatile fundamentalists and student groups. Sharif has threatened that his ouster will bring upporters into the streets.

His removal also could make the military and bureaucracy anxious, some analysts say. Sharif is believed to have close ties to the Army and is seen in some quarters as a check on Benazir.

So far, the Army has kept a low profile. Still, after years under martial law. Pakistanis remain uneasy. "The Army would still like Nawaz Sharif to be around. They feel he is a countervailing force against Benazir," says Mushahid Hussain, an analyst who closely follows the military.

"Sharif also could unleash the mullahs (religious leaders) and the students on the streets," Hussain says. "They could prove to be a lethal combination." (The Christian Science Monitor).

SIR: For the last four years I have been waiting to get a post box in Jleeb Shoyoukh post office. Whenever I enquire at the post office the usual reply is "come next week." or "come next month." I think I have no chance of getting it in the near future.

Many times the postal authorities announce in the newspapers that new post boxes will be available. But till now Jleeb Shoyoukh residents did not get even a single box.

As there are many new commercial establishments, offices and

Baggage allowance

SIR: Airlines nowadays are strictly adhering to the 20-kg baggage allowance. The staff at the airport counter insist on weighing even a briefcase or a hand bag, and do not allow it to be taken along with passengers if they think it is a little heavy.

It is surprising that nobody thinks of increasing the 20-kg free baggage allowance which was in vogue from the beginning of commercial flights. On the other hand the airline authorities increase fares on flimsy grounds. Logically free bag-gage allowance should have been raised correspondingly.

If passengers are not allowed to carry extra baggage, the economy of Kuwait will suffer for people will not buy goods from Kuwait to take to their homelands. Shopkeepers will then feel the pinch, markets will become sluggish and jobs scar-cer. I hope the concerned authorities will ponder over this situation.

SIR: I wrote a letter in the Arab Times some time ago about the incurable problem of speeding in Kuwait. I am writing again because this matter still concerns me.

I am astounded that road safety officials in Kuwait cannot find a single factor that is directly related to accidents and fatalities. Some people speak about special safety features in certain cars. The authorities even had to bring in an expert to tell us what we already know about safety and driving. I am sure that this expert never took a drive along some of the roads. If he had, he would have said: "Well, with regard to Kuwait, forget all the physical and emotional problems involved to driving and just obey the speed signs, and that will take care of your problem."

Why is it that authorities are so concerned and so effective in enforcing the narcotics law while they are allowing speeding car drivers to kill not only themselves but you and me?

KD deposits on the rise

Money supply growth quickens money supply totalled KD5.092 million. recording a tangible rise of KD293 million (6.1 per cent) over the previous quarter. The rise in money supply resulted from an increase of KD191 million (17.2 per cent) in deposits denominated in foreign currencies and KD95 million (2.8 per cent) in KD deposits, according to Kuwait Central Bank's Quarterly Statistical Bulletin. The rise in deposits denominated in foreign currencies came in the context of the upward trend of international interest rates during the last quarter of 1988.

Meanwhile, the rise in KD time deposits - particularly in December 1988 after a steady decline since April of the same year - was due to increased rates on KD deposits, following the Central Bank's decision determining the minimum limits of interest rates on private sector deposits in KD with banks, effective December 11,

Declined

During the last quarter of 1988, the average KD exchange rate improved relatively (0.91 per cent) against the dollar, as the dollar exchange rate ranged between 279.02 fils and 288.93 fils, an average of 281.70 fils.

Against other major currencies, the dinar declined slightly at rates ranging franc and 5.46 per cent against the Japanese yen. Meanwhile, these rates were 4.41 per cent, 3.88 per cent and 3.25 per cent against the pound sterling, the Deutsche mark, the Italian lira and the Swiss franc respectively. Nevertheless, the KD performance was more stable than that of the dollar because the dollar declined at rates higher than those of the KD against major currencies.

Compared to the third quarter, interest rates on interbank KD deposits recorded a considerable rise in the last quarter of 1988 at rates of 16.1 per cent (from 6.24 per cent to 7.24 per cent) on three-month deposits and 12.4 per cent (from 6.40 per cent to 7.20 per cent) on one-year deposits.

At the end of the last quarter of 1988, the balance of public debt instruments maintained its level (KD1,394.5 million) in the previous quarter. During this quarter, the Central Bank of Kuwait offered eight issues (No. 25, 26, 27, 28, 30, 32, 34 and 35) of treasury bills amounting to KD770 million and three issues (No. 29, 31 and 33) of one-year treasury bonds totalling KD62.5 million.

Meanwhile, eight issues (from Issue No. 17 to 24) of treasury bills and one-year bonds of treasury bonds (Issues No. 1, 2 and 3) of the same values stated above, have matured during this quarter. During the last quarter of 1988, the aggregate balance sheet of local banks decreased by K.D500 million (3.86 per cent) below its level in the previous quarter to reach KD 12,463 million.

This decline was totally concentrated in the aggregate balance sheet of commercial banks (5.2 per cent). Meanwhile, the aggregate balance sheet of specialised banks grew by KD65 million (3.2 per cent).

Investments

On the side of assets, this decline in the aggregate balance sheet of local banks came as a result of a decrease of KD595 million in local investments of these banks in shares, bonds and public debt instruments, in their foreign assets and other assets, including interbank deposits, against a rise of KD95 million, over the previous quarter, in their credit facilities to residents and their balances in their vaults and at the Central Bank of Kuwait.

On the side of liabilities, the decline is attributed to a decrease of KD728 million in foreign liabilities of these banks and other liabilities, including interbank deposits, against an increase of KD228 million in government deposits, private sector deposits and own funds. During the second quarter (October-December 1988) of the fiscal year 1988/89 public revenues totalled KD550.5 million against KD461.1 million in the first quarter (July-September 1988) recording an increase of 19.4 per cent. This increase resulted from a rise in oil revenues (from KD406.6 million to KD424.6 million) and in other revenues (from KD54.5 million to KD125.9 million).

Public expenditure during the second quarter of the fiscal year 1988/89 increased slightly by KD2.5 million (0.4 per cent) over the previous quarter totalling KD 618.1 million. The components of public expenditure varied in their values as the total of capital, development and other expenditure increased by KD36.4 million. The total value of current expenditure and land purchases decreased by KD33.9

During the first half of the fiscal year 1988/89, public revenues totalled KD1,011.8 million (49.3 per cent) of the total general budget estimates) against KD1,437.2 million for the corresponding half in the previous year. On the other hand, public expenditure totalled KD1,233.5 million, recording an increase of 8.4 per cent over the first half of the previous fiscal year and accounting for 36.9 per cent of the general budget appropriations after amendment.

Gulf Bank shareholders oust 'old guard' directors

Commitment to solve debt problem

Moscow, Cuba sign treaty

HAVANA, April 5, (Reuter): The Soviet Union and Cuba signed a friendship treaty on Tuesday pledging to work together to relieve the Third World debt problem and agreed that regional conflicts should be solved only by peaceful means.

The 14-article treaty between the two communist allies, signed in Havana by visiting Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev and Cuban President Fidel Castro. declared their "fraternal and indestructible friendship based on common ideology."

Cuba is the last of the Soviet Union's communist allies to sign such a treaty with Moscow.

Earlier, a leading Cuban human rights activist was arrested for organising a protest demonstration in front of the Soviet embassy, and the US State Department said at least eight other activists had been detained by police.

The treaty was signed in a brief ceremony at the Palace of Conventions a few hours before Gorbachev was scheduled to deliver a key speech expected to focus on the developing world. Accord The accord said the two countries "will promote general international co-operation geared to the economic and social development of nations in order to economic order and the solution of the serious external debt problem the vast majority of Third World countries are suffering." The Soviet Union and Cuba ensure the establishment of a new universal norm of conduct in inter-state relations and in fostering the settlement of conflicts between states solely by peaceful and political means," it added. The treaty said the two countries "will also contribute to the solution of regional conflicts and hotbeds of tension through negotiated political means." It said such solutions should be "based on respect for the sovereignty and right of peoples to exercise self-determination and freely choose their political and social regimes without foreign interference." Analysts said this represented a compromise between the Soviet view that all regional conflicts should be settled politically, and Cuba's line that military ass-

Nearly five years after the tragedy, regarded as the world's worst industrial accident, the court ordered Union Carbide to pay $470 million in compensation to the victims.

They said the yield on today's 100 million dinar ($345 million) issue of 91-day treasury bills, at around 7.9 per cent, had been lower than expected and much of the issue had been taken up by institutions other than banks.

As a result, short-term rates eased in the morning, prompting, the Central Bank to offer bills from previous issues at a higher yield. Liquidity then suddenly went dry, the dealers said. One-week, bid at nine per cent vesterday, eased to 8-1/27-1/2 in the morning before rising to 10 nine later in the day.

Overnight dealt at one in the morning, but then rose to offers of three.

In the fixed dates, one-month was quoted at 9-1/2 nine after trading at nine yesterday. Three months to one year were little changed at 9-1/2 1/4.

The Central Bank adjusted its dinar to dollar exchange rate to 0.28935/45 from 0.28925/35 yesterday.

Meanwhile, Saudi riyal deposit rates were mostly steady today in quiet trade, although short-dated maturities eased due to technical factors ahead of the Gulf Friday weekend.

Dealers said riyal yields were closely tracking Eurodollar interest rates, which were also steady and seen set to remain so until the release on Friday of US March employment data figures.

Dhaka needs stronger growth to fight poverty, says IMF

DHAKA, April 5, (Reuter): Bangladesh, recovering from the effects of devastating floods and cyclones, needs stronger economic growth to combat extreme poverty in its rapidly growing population, the International Monetary Fund said.

"The major challenge facing Bangladesh will be to realise stronger growth and higher standard of living for a rapidly growing population, large segments of which subsist at levels of extreme poverty," the IMF said in a report. Bangladesh's population of nearly 110 million is growing at an annual rate of 2.5 per cent.

The country's gross domestic product (GDP) is expected to grow about two per cent in the fiscal year to June 1989 after largely recovering from setbacks caused by floods and cyclones. said the report, made available to Reuters today.

GDP grew three per cent in 1987/88.

Floods and cyclones in October and November last year destroyed nearly three million tonnes of rice in the fields and killed more than 5,000 people, according to official figures. Government officials said the accumulated economic loss caused by the disasters could be about $2.5 billion.

Meanwhile, strikers delayed the start of drilling at Ban-gladesh's only oil field today in protest against leasing it to foreign explorers, officials said. They said a 12-hour dawn-todusk strike called by several student and political groups also halted traffic and closed shops and offices in the northeastern town of Sylhet. The strike was intended to delay drilling by the British-Canadian company Scimitar at Haripur oilfield.

On Tuesday night protesters burned three vehicles, stoned buildings and attacked policemen. Police said 12 people were injured and more than a dozen arrested.

Energy Minister Anwar Hos-sain earlier said Scimitar, which is initially investing $60 million, was authorised to drill three wells for appraisal and exploration by a five-year production-sharing agreement signed last December.

But officials at the state oil and gas corporation, the Petrobangla, which discovered the oil reserves in December, 1986, opposed the deal and drew support from various student, worker and political groups.

Officials said Bangladesh decided to lease the oilfield nology. Petrobangla officials differed, saying they were capable of handling both production and refining.

The oil field, with estimated reserves of 40 million barrels, now produces 600 barrels of waxy crude a day.

UN draws up blacklist of dangerous chemicals

SINGAPORE, April 5. (Reuter): The United Nations is drawing up a blacklist of dangerous chemicals to control their movement across national boundaries, the Asia-Pacific chief of the UN Environment Programme said today.

Nav Htun told a Pacific basic conference on hazardous waste that chemicals banned or restricted by 10 or more countries would be placed on the list and importers and exporters obliged to advise on their movements.

He estimated the blacklist would initially have 80 chemicals on it, with three or four more added every year.

As the grounding of the supertanker Exxon Valdez off Alaska showed, no matter how technologically advanced measures were to prevent pollution, "we will always have to contend with the possibility of human error."

The Exxon Valdez dumped 240,000 barrels of oil on March 24 into Prince William Sound, off Alaska, creating the United States' worst oil spill. The Exxon Shipping Company fired the captain of the Exxon Valdez last Thursday after blood alcohol tests indicated he was drunk when the tanker ran aground.

One hundred and fifty participants from 20 countries have registered for the four-day conference sponsored by the Pacific basin consortium for Hazardous Waste Research, a private group whose aims include identifying and assessing hazardous waste management problems common to Pacific nations.

Inaugurating the conference, Singapore's Environment Minister Ahmad Mattar said the progress of science and technology was so rapid new chemical substances and processes were being discovered almost daily.

'As industries become more sophisticated and high technology oriented, the waste produced is in lesser quantity but much more concentrated, more toxic and more hazordous," he said.

He said nobody really knew how many hazardous waste dumps there were around the world.

The Netherlands estimates it has eight million tonnes of hazardous chemical wastes buried in Dutch soil and West Germany expects to spend $4 billion cleaning up its abandoned hazardous waste sites, he said. Mattar said an international legal instrument to control transboundary transportation of hazardous waste, adopted in Basle. Switzerland, in March was useful as "some form of global control.*

In the light of deception

Natya Bharati, an Indian group, has begun rehearsals for a Hindi play entitle: 'Bin Baati ke Deep', written by playwright Dr Shankar Shesh.

It will be performed on May 4 and 5 at the Sharq Co-operative Hall. Dr Shesh, who scripted such Hindi films as Gharoanda, writes about topical social problems. In Bin Baati ke Deep, Shesh tackles deception woven around the rags to riches story of a blind woman who trusts her husband and believes she is 'seeing' the world through his eyes. "It is a story of deception and plagiarism," explained director Rakesh Asthana, who last year acted in a comedy called Undersecretary.

The play stars Mamta Tomar, U.C. Sharma, Anshu Sharma and Prakash Nimani. Asthana plays the role of the husband.

The performance will be followed by a buffet dinner, provided by Caesars Pestaurant. The group has been sponsored by Seven Up and Oriental

HUMOUR

ONE of America's bestkept secrets is pet-owner abuse — meaning the battering of owners by their pets. Nobody talks about it, but more people are showing up in hospital emergency rooms black and blue all over, and sometimes even with broken arms and fractured ribs. Inevitably, their injuries have been caused by "man's best friend." as these pets are called in the TV commercials.

There are no statistics available on how many battered pet-owners there are in this country because these crimes are rarely reported.

I recently made a hospital visit to a pet-owner named Mary R. to hear her story. She was willing to speak for this column on the condition that we didn't show her face and that we disguised her voice.

"How long have you been battered by your pet?" I asked her.

She bit her lip, "For seven years. When he was a Doberman puppy, he was so lovable, but as he grew older he kept snéaking up from behind and knocking me down.

Mary R. wiped away a tear. "I was walking Buster on a leash when he saw a squirrel and bolted for it. My mistake was to hold on. He dragged me for almost 20 feet and my ribs cracked when I hit a rock garden dedicated to the Daughters

Revolution." 'It sounds like a typical battered pet-owner case." 'What made it even worse was that after he stopped chasing the squirrel, he came back to where I lay bleeding and pretended to passersby that nothing had happened." Why did you let him back in the house?" She answered, "He's not like that all the time. Some days he can be as sweet as Haagen-Dazs ice cream, and I guess I put up with the battering just to have those moments."

"Have you told anyone else that your Doberman beats up on you?" "I'm afraid to. Buster has a terrible temper and I don't know what he would do if he overheard me

"All the time. Once I was trying to adjust the TV set in the living room and he pushed me right through the screen."

"How else does he abuse you?" I asked Mary R. This time she cried as she spoke, "He licks my face when I am trying to put on makeup. "Perhaps if he won't go, you should leave him," I suggested.

Where could I hide?" I felt it was time to have a serious talk with Mary R. "Pet-owner abuse is practiced all over this country. It has existed for a long time, but people never talked about it. For centuries pets tripped up their owners and bit their ankles - yet no one dared call the police. Then a few owners started to speak out and now there are support groups to help someone in need. You have a sick dog, and you have to stop making excuses for him. Otherwise, you will wind up in the broken bone department of this hospital every other week.'

Mary R. said, "I don't know whether it's worse to be pounded by a pet or to live alone."

"I can't answer that," I confessed. "We know that Buster will never change and so you must. Does your pet mistreat your husband as well?"

'No, he left home two months ago after telling me to choose between him and the dog."

I MET the first feminist python when I worked in a dark and rather dustysmelling bar in the west end

It was not immediately obvious that Suzy was a snake at all, never mind a right-on one, because she was snuggled round the neck of a regular, Big Annie, like a brown and black patterned Hermes scart.

It was only when the scarf woke up, lifted her head and licked her lips that I dropped a pint of Guinness on my feet and realised the worst.

The barman pointed weakly to the No Dogs Allowed sign above the door and Big Annie (not a woman to be trifled with at the best of times) pointed out that there was no mention of snakes.

Suzy uncoiled a few feet and glared nastily at the barman, who muttered about checking some barrels and slunk off into the safety of the black cellar.

Confided "It's just men she doesn't like, you know," confided Big Annie, as she leaned most of her chest on the bar and awaited her pint of eider and blackcurrant. "Give her a stroke," Suzy, resuming her scarf position, consented to a nervous pat on the tail. I only realised the sort of damage a pissed-off python can do later, when Big Annie's husband Robert arrived. He showed me two red holes in his palm, which matched another two tooth marks on the back of his hand and similar patterns up his arm, mingling with his

'She jus' headbutted the roof of her tank, shot across the room and sank her teeth right into ma hand," he said to the admiring customers. "It's because ah gave her a good hard poke when ah bought her to see if she wis healthy. Ah mean, snakes ius' lie there, so you've got to get them angry to see how fit they are."

Suzy had never forgotten her first meeting with Robert, when she was the size of a school ruler, and was making sure he didn't either, by making regular guerrilla assaults on him and other men. "See, a big python's worth about a hundred quid, but if she wasn't such a good wee breeder ah'd hiv got shot of her long ago," he said. Robert wasn't just keen on breeding snakes, he was keen on breeding Roberts, and appeared to have another wife or girlfriend besides Big Annie, whose name we never discovered. They were both very large. or in a perpetual state of pregnancy, and either one might turn up pushing a pram and wearing Suzy in a rather threatening way, to drag Robert home for his dinner. For the women working behind the bar, seeing Robert brought to heel by a two-year-old snake was a great pleasure, since he was in the bottom-pincher and troublemaker class of clientele.

He was small, fat, darkhaired and rather greasy and he used to lurk just at the bar exit, waiting to pat you when your arms were occupied by 15 empty glasses.

That was nothing to whatever he did in the Gents, from which various "friends" who owed him money would emerge, slightly roughed up or occasionally bloodied.

They would snatch a towelling mat from the bar, clutch it to their heads to stem the flow and disappear. Violence

That sort of violence tended to stop if Suzy was around, particularly if she was performing her new trick of touring in and out of the beer pump handles. The regulars, who normally spent their time leaning over the bar trying to see down the front of your dress, had to stand back and pretend they were hard men who were not afraid of a mere boa. Even better, when the heavies got blootered or pished or miroculous, as they described it. Suzy began to take on gigantic proportions in their befuddled minds.

Any plans to chat up or pinch would go by the

HEAR THAT-?

wayside as they quietly

a Magnining Segmented Repositions (17)

worked themselves up into a state of fear, which Robert would encourage by showing his latest scars.

At the end of the summer when the football season began, Suzy's delightful reign of terror in the pub stopped. The men stopped discussing snakes and began discussing Celtic and Rangers again. Big Annie said it was too cold and wet to bring her down the road. 'Pythons are dreadful for catching the cold, you know, so we're keeping them in their heated tanks again."

Soon after I stopped working in the bar, moved to London and heard nothing about Suzy for a couple of years. Then I was reading the Mirror and noticed a small story titled Snake Escape. "A six-foot-long python is on the loose in Glasgow. The brown and black patterned snake terrified a woman yesterday when it appeared from behind the panelling of her bath in a flat in the west end of the city. It then disappeared and council animal experts have been unable to find it. A local snake breeder has reported the loss of a python. There was no follow-up story. It may not be Suzy sneaking down pipes into Glasgow bathrooms waiting to bite unsuspecting men who behave like Robert, but the snake showed no signs of attacking the terrified woman and politely disappeared.

It sounds like a feminist python to me. Bumpinchers considering taking a bath in Glasgow should beware.

The bidding: North Pass 4 NT 5 NT Pass 6 ◊ Pass Pass

Opening lead: Jack of 🕏 This week, we will concentrate on gleaning clues from the bidding and play. One of the beauties of bridge is that it gives practitioners a chance to reason and infer, rather than project from a position where everything is known, as in chess. This hand fooled a many-time national champion. Even though North-South were playing five-card majors, North was prepared to play in a diamond slam even opposite a three-card suit in partner's hand. When South could not bid a a grand slam, North signed off in six diamonds. Declarer won the opening club lead in dummy and East dropped the queen. A trump to the ace revealed the bad break, and declared could not recover. Since he needed to ruff dummy's club losers in hand, he could not draw East's fangs, and East eventually scored a trump trick and a club ruff.

East's queen of clubs at the first trick should have flashed a warning signal that declarer was going to encounter bad breaks. After winning the opening lead, correct rechnique was for declarer to cash the king of diamonds. When the trump position shows up, declarer can still get home with careful fiming.

After cashing the king-ace of spades and king-ace of hearts, declarer should ruff a heart in dummy. A marked trump finesse is then the entry to ruff a spade, and another trump finesse allows declarer to draw all of East's trumps. In practice, West will be squeezed in the black suits, and declarer will collect

Why the number 13 is considered unlucky

THE idea that the number 13 is unlucky is a superstition. There are many different kinds of superstitions, based on things in nature, charms, spirits, objects, colours, accidents, and so on.

But there is probably no superstition that has as many people observing it, in one way or another, all over the world, as the one that 13 is unlucky. Many hotels don't have a 13th floor — the count goes, from 12 to 14. Some hotel rooms don't have a 13. Many people would never have 13 persons at a dinner table.

Yet the strange thing is that there is no single, accepted explanation for the origin of the supersti-tion about 13. There are many different ideas about the origin of it.

Some experts say 13 was unpopular from the time when man learned to count. By using his ten fin-gers and two feet as units, he came up with the number 12. But beyond that — was unknown and frightening to him.

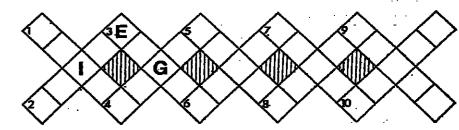

Among religious circles, the 13 superstition is traced back to the Last Supper, at which were Christ and the twelve Disciples - thirteen in all. Other people go back to the story of the Valhalla banquet in Scandinavian mythology, to which twelve gods were invited. Loki, the spirit of strife and Mischief, intruded, making thirteen. As a result Balder, the favourite of the gods, was Another strange thing about 13 is that this number was regarded as lucky by the ancient Chinese and

Sweden kills

giant China to snatch world title

DORTMUND, West Germany, April 5. (Reuter): Swedish coach Glenn Osth says bard work and talent helped his team to bridge the gulf with giants China and snatch the World Table Tennis title from their grasp for the first time in eight years. Sweden's 5-0 win over China. the dominant force in the men's game for the last decade, in yesterday final was achieved despite a huge gap in the number of players in the two nations. Sweden has 13,000 organised players, China has millions.

But Osth says determined effort, talent and strong team spirit brought the Swedes through a controversial final marred by an outburst by star Chinese player Jiang Jialiang.
"The chances to prepare for a world championships are a little bit different in China than in Sweden so you need some super talent in the team to do it," Osth

Lost

China have lost only two men's team finals since 1971 and have defeated the Swedes in the last three. But Osth said his side took advantage of past experience to strike.

"In the previous finals we often lost many games when it was 20-20. We learned a lot through those losses and today we could prove it," he added.

The result gave a major boost to a sport desperate to improve its world-wide appeal by showing there are rivals to the dominant Chinese teams. China have picked up 25 out of the 28 gold medals on offer at the last four championships and have already won the women's team final here.

But bad-mannered behaviour by Jiang, one of most respected world champions, and a controversial decision by the sport's governing body during the final hardly enhanced the game's reputation. Penalised

Jiang held up play for 10 minutes in his rubber against Jan-Ove Waldner, refusing to continue unless the umpire was changed after he was penalised for a faulty serve.

The incident painted the darker.side.of a player.who.has previously been known as one of China emost sociable and cheerful champions and is expected to retire after Dortmund.

A decision by the International Table Tennis Federauon, the sport s gi to overrule the chief referee and bow to Jiang's demands by replacing the umpire was heavily criticised.

"I find it scandalous for a world championship final to end with one player trying to blackmail the umpire in his own favour," said Hans Wilhelm Gaeb, president of the Dortmund Organising Committee.

The Swedish victory made up for disappointment at the last championships in New Delhi where the team were struck by a virus and lost 5-0 in the final.

American rider wins second leg

LA ARBOLEDA, Spain, April 5. (AP): American Andrew Hampsten won the second leg of the 29th tour of the Basque Country Cycling Race yesterday, while Spaniard Pello Ruiz Cabestany became the new overall leader.

Hampsten, who won the Italian cycling race in 1988, covered the 30 kms (18.6 miles) in 56 minutes and 44 seconds, after a strong sprint with the main group of riders. All them finished at the same time as the winner.

The second leg comprised a total of 199 kms (123 miles) between Lazcano and Valle de Trapaga, with six mountain passes, but it was cut because of bad weather.

Cabestany, who was sixth in the leg at the same time as Hampsten, took the yellow jersey as overall leader from Denmark's

Johny Weltz. Today's third leg is scheduled to be run between Valle de Trapaga and Ebardin, a stretch of 183 kms (113 miles) with five mountain passes. Leg standing: 1. Andrew Hampsten, United States, 56:44. 2. Rolf Jaermann, Switzerland,

Washington Bullets score 14th consecutive win

NEW YORK, April 5, (AP): Bernard King scored 43 points and Jeff Malone added 29 last night, pacing the Washington Bullets to their 14th consecutive home court victory, 104-96 over the New Jersey Nets.

The 43 points are the most King has scored since he played for New York and suffered a knee injury in March 1985 that sidelined him for 24 months. He scored 19 points in the first quarter, tying the Washington record for points in an opening period.

Malone scored 16 in the second period, two short of the record by a Bullet in a second quarter since the team moved from Baltimore in 1973. Lost

Corey Gaines scored 18 points for the Nets, who have lost four straight games, 13 in a row away from home and haven't won at the capital centre in their last nine visits covering three seasons. In other games, Cleveland

76ers 124, Knicks 113 Ron Anderson scored 15 of his 36 points in less than six minutes of the second quarter, giving

Philadelphia the lead for good. The 76ers, who have won four straight games and six of seven, became the first team to beat the Knicks twice at Madison Square Garden this season. New York is 32-5 at home but four of the defeats have come in their last seven outings.

Charles Barkley added 32 points for Philadelphia. Patrick Ewing had 33 points and 20 rebounds, Mark Jackson 24 points and Johnny Newman 18 for the Knicks.

Cavaliers 105, Hawks 91 Ron Harper scored 32 points and Cleveland's defence forced four straight turnovers during an 11-0 tie-breaking run midway through the fourth quarter.

John Williams made two free throws to start the spurt, giving the Cavaliers an 84-82 lead with 8:19 left. The Hawks then turned the ball over on their next four possessions, beginning with two straight steals by Craig Ehlo that set up easy fast-break baskets by Harper and Mark Price.

Bulis 121, Hornets 101 Michael Jordan, playing his 14th game at point guard, notched his sixth consecutive tripledouble - 33 points, 10 rebounds, 12 assists.

It was Jordan's 10th tripledouble of the season and 15th of his career. Coach Doug Collins left him in the runaway game until 5:14 was left. The Bulls are 11-3 since Jordan moved from shooting guard to point guard. He also led the Bulls with six

Becker may lead West German squad into Davis Cup semifinals

LONDON, April 5, (Reuter): Boris Becker should lead holders West Germany into the Davis Cup semifinals this weekend at the expense of a Czechoslovakia team likely to be stripped of the talents of the mercurial Miloslav

With Mecir expected to be lost to his team because of a back injury, Becker and company may find that a potentially troublesome visit to Prague has turned into a gentle weekend out-

Mecir's back injury forced his withdrawal from the two-week Key Biscayne event last month and he was taken to hospital in agony from practice in Prague on Monday. The final decision was delayed, but he was not expected to be fit.

In desperation, team captain Frantisek Pala telephoned US based Ivan Lendl, but had his appeal turned down by the world's number one, who has not played Davis Cup since 1985. Strong

Becker and teammates Carl-Uwe Steeb, Eric Jelen and Patrick Kuehnen, the squad which carried West Germany to the title against Sweden in last year's final, seem too strong - on paper anyway — for a Cze-choslovak quartet which would comprise Milan Srejeber, Tomas Smid. Petr Korda and Marian Vajda. Czechoslovakia are not the only team with problems heading into the quarterfinal

Austria upset Australia 5-0 in the first round and Sweden might well have viewed with caution their weekend trip to Vienna. Then the best Austrian player, Thomas Muster, was injured in a freak car accident in Florida last weekend and suddenly a daunting prospect for the struggling Swedes became a manageable

But Sweden still need better performances than they have had recently from former world number one Mats Wilander and Wimbledon champion Stefan Edberg to dispose of the Austrians on a court composed fully of clay in Vienna's Ferry Dusika Stadium.

The clay-over-matting com-pound surface on which they beat the Australians has since been prohibited by the International Tennis Federation. Yugoslavia's home advantage

...may be too much for Spain to overcome, with the big-hitting Slobodan Zivojinovic and the fast-rising Goran Ivanisevic expected to be too strong for the clay-oriented Spanish squad on a fast carpet surface in split.

Spain had the toughest open-ing round tie of the eight survivors, a 3-2 victory over Mexico, and the Sanchez brothers and their teammates may be out of their depth in split.

Prodigy John McEnroe, the veteran on the way back up, and teenager Andre Agassi, the falling prodigy, will lead the United States against France in what is potentially the most attractive tie of the four.

San Diego is the venue for a tie which could go down to the wire if Agassi does not improve on his recent form and if Yannick Noah and Henri Leconte produce the tennis of which they are capable.

McEnroe has won more Davis Cup singles matches, 37, than any American in history. But the US team's ace-in-the hole could turn out to be their doubles pair of Ken Flach and Robert Seguso.

The ever reliable duo are unbeaten in Davis Cup play and they also hold the Olympic title.

Steaua crush Galatasaray

BUCHAREST. April (Reuter): Steaua Bucharest of Romania crushed Galatasaray of Turkey 4-0 today to move within easy reach of their second European Cup final appearance in four seasons.

The Romanian Army team, winners of the trophy in 1986 when they beat Barcelona in Seville, set up the prospect of another trip to Spain for this year's final in Barcelona with an overwhelming performance. Goals by llie Dumitrescu, after eight minutes, and Gheorghe Hagi, from the penalty spot after 40, secured a 2-0 interval lead and further efforts from Dan Patrescu and Gavril Balint in the second period secured a commanding advantage for the second leg in two weeks time.

Steaua began with great elan and swept in front when winger Iosif Rotariu streaked past four defenders to set up Ilie J Dumitrescu. His low shot from eight metres gave goalkeeper Zoran Simovic no chance.

Galatasaray, the first Turkish team to reach the last four of any of the three European club soccer competitions, packed their defence in a bid to hold out, but the Steaua onslaught continued unabated — though they had to wait until five minutes before the interval for their second goal. Striker Victor Piturca was the creator with a stealthy run which carried him behind the Turks' defence and into space. Erhan Onal brought him down to concede a penalty which Gheorghe Hagi converted with aplomb. It was the same story after the interval with Steaua, almost unbelievably, increasing the pace of their game.

The third goal came in the 68th minute when Dumitrescu and Marius Lacatus combined to set up defender Dan Petrescu whose 16-metre shot flew through a unsighted Simovic.
